At A-V Services, we are proud to have partnered with Infor, a leader in enterprise software, to enhance their corporate headquarters in New York City. Our team was tasked with replacing an outdated LCD video wall in the lobby with a state-of-the-art Leyard TVF Series LED display, designed to create a seamless, visually stunning experience for visitors.

STREAMLINED INSTALLATION AND MAINTENANCE

Our collaboration focused on addressing the challenges posed by the original installation. The previous LCD displays were not only heavy but also difficult to service, often requiring extensive labor and scaffolding to access individual monitors. As Darwin Dicang, our systems design engineer, noted, maintaining the old setup was cumbersome and time-consuming.

By opting for the Leyard TVF Series, we provided Infor with a solution that significantly reduces future maintenance headaches. The lightweight, front-serviceable cabinets made installation easier, allowing for a swift, efficient setup without the complications of heavy equipment. Andrew Musci, our director of business development, emphasized how the smaller, manageable cabinets facilitated a streamlined process.

A COLLABORATIVE EFFORT

The success of this project was a testament to the collaborative efforts among Infor, A-V Services, JRM Construction, and Planar (a Leyard Company). Together, we tackled the logistical challenges of the tight installation space, ensuring that the new video wall not only met technical specifications but also aligned aesthetically with Infor's vision.

ENGAGING VISITORS WITH IMPACTFUL CONTENT

The new Leyard TVF Series video wall serves as a powerful tool for Infor to engage clients and prospects. It showcases vivid 4K content that highlights real-world applications of Infor's software, creating a captivating narrative that resonates with visitors. Scott MacAllister, Infor's senior AV technician, shared their excitement about the potential for tailored messaging that enhances visitor interactions.

With the installation complete, we are thrilled to have contributed to a project that not only enhances Infor's lobby but also elevates their brand experience. Our team at A-V Services looks forward to more opportunities to provide innovative AV solutions that drive business success.
